Barb,

Just a quick update -

9/1/2005

PM3016597139

3016597139

3016597139

I'm working on the intro and methods sections of the manuscript. I took these sections from the last draft of the CSR and am working towards making it more concise and to the point. My goal is to have a good mockup of this by the end of the week. At that time, I expect that I'll have the more recent CSR draft and will use this to start writing the results next week. In terms of any manuscript tables (and figures) - for now, I'm just copying some of the more relevant tables (as is) and once we agree on the makeup, I can make these look better or cut out some of the un-necessary data.

Thanks,

Pat

Subject: Manuscript Questions

Hi Barbara,

Just a couple of assumptions (that I need to verify) and questions for the manuscript:

9/1/2005

PM3016597140

3016597140

3016597140

1) Introduction - I am assuming that the introduction will pretty much be similar to the report introduction. We will introduce the study design and describe each of the biomarkers being sampled in TES. Sounds like a good start; may want to add a bit more detail, but let's start w/ this.

2) Methods - We will describe only the bioanalytical methods for NE and COHb. The other methods will be described in future manuscripts that provide the results of these other biomarkers. In the JLI manuscript, we were providing details of the methods. Can we reference that these methods were the same as in JLI (or modifications of the methods in JLI) or do you want a full description of the NE and COHb methods in this manuscript? This manuscript should pretty much follow what's presented in Part A CSR re intro, design, methods.

Thanks,

Pat
