Hi Jennifer,

Here is an Excel file containing a worksheet (worksheet #1) putting McKesson's return request in the format you wanted. There are two things we can argue. First, it seems in some cases that McKesson ordered excess inventory after their 12/11/13 announcement, and thus, we are not going to pay the NRDC Fee or Cash Terms on those units (we will most likely have to try and get that value, ~$17K, in some way other than in a straight case payment). Second, their units seem high compared to what I pulled out of ValueCentric. Their answer to this may be that there are units in the morgue that are being included, but I can't know that through VC. Both of these arguments are detailed on worksheet #2 in the file.

I will continue to work with you, Jane and Walt on how we want to handle this situation. As you can see, Jason Hanks was copied on the email from Cheryl Palmer, so this has high visibility at McKesson as well. Thanks.

Dear Supplier Partner,

On January 13, 2011, the FDA sent a safety announcement which asks drug manufacturers to limit the strength of acetaminophen in prescription drug products to 325mg per tab, cap or other dosage unit. (Please see <http://www.fda.gov/Drugs/DrugSafety/ucm239821.htm>).

Per the FDA's Web site FAQ: Drug companies will have three years from the date of publication of the Federal Register Notice (January 14, 2011) to limit the amount of acetaminophen in their oral prescription drug products to 325 mg per dosage unit (see the Federal Register Notice² Docket number FDA-2011-N-0021-0001). That puts the date at 1/14/2014.

<http://www.fda.gov/Drugs/DrugSafety/InformationbyDrugClass/ucm239871.htm>

McKesson will not sell product for which FDA has withdrawn approval, and in the absence of formal approval of withdrawal, as of 1/14/2014 McKesson will not sell any oral prescription acetaminophen drug products that have over 325 mg per dosage unit. On January 13, 2014, inventory will be pulled from McKesson Distribution Center shelves and product will be coded as discontinued. You will be advised of quantity on hand and a request for return authorization will follow.

Attached is the list of items that will be pulled from our shelves and returned to you.

Please let me know if you have any questions

Best Regards,

Mayosh Barton
